price of whate and and both on that and the prices of oils and both throughout the year. Sperm oil was sold at $2.60 °C gallon at the beginning of the year, ruled at $2.70 in February and March, then decimed, and through July and August was stationary at $2. In October there were sales at $2.25, and early in November at $2.20, since when the price has been cominal, but with probability of a decline.

"Among the moteometry incidents of the year is the failure of the attempt of a speculator to control the market for sperm oil. In the tail of 1866 he commenced buying largely, and at most time bold nearly all the crude sperm oil in the country, nanounding to more than a million dollars' worth; but the imports of the article being largely in excess of previous expectations. In whate oil, prices have ruled greatly below those of the previous year. It was at 80 cents $2 \text{gnion}$ in January, so in literal for Arctic, and since them has fluctuated between 70 and 75 cents, except the first of July, when it got down to 65 cents. The average price for the year has been 74; cents, against $1.12 the previous year.

"Arctic bone opened the year at $1.33 °C fb, and gradually declined, reaching $1.15 in July, recovered to $1.25 in September, and has since tone down again, selling nor for 93 to 96 cents. Sauthern bone has correspondingly failen from about $1.10 for 86 cents. The average price of Arctic for the year was $1.220, of all morthern bout $1.201, of southern $1.001, and of bone of all kinds in general $1.165."

At the latest advices from New Beilford, Jan. 21st, oils were still very depressed, sporm selling at $2.00 and whale at 65c and at these rates the market was very dull.

The distress among the laboring classes in England and France has been very great the past winter, owing to the depression of trade and reaconfectures. The same state of things eralls in some portions of the United States. The Spring- Mrs Rai field Republican thus refers to the depression in New Eng-

"Scarcity of work, a decline in wages, thousands out of employment, other thousands earning barely enough to keep body and soul together—these are some of the prevailing facts in the cities and manufacturing towns that mark this as a hard winter, and we have it will prove much the hardest since the war commenced. The shifted arthams, who have been receiving wages in proportion to the increased cost of living for the post six years, have surved superthing, and will not be brought to any actual distress by a few months of idences or half work. Not so the common day laborers. An inflated currency made them power from the first, and they have mothing to fall back upon when out of work in most cases. Happily, however, there is no general flusocial breakdown and suspension of business. In some departments of infor there is a temporary passe, in others a contraction of both work and wages, but still the large majusity are employed and are carming a comfortable subsistmajority are employed and are carning a confortable subsistance. If Congress, by reducing taxation and the expense of the Government, by establishing the until mainfiguress on a secure and personnent basis, and by giving the South an opportunity to recove itself from the descintance of the war, shall restore confidence to commercial circles, we may reasonably expect a revival of leasiness in the early spring."

The French Government, in its efforts to secure an international monetary system, has introduced a new gold coin of the Mrs. Anna Schoyer, same value as the American half eagle. On one side it is stamped "5 nottags-25 reason." This is the first step towards a universal decimal currency, adapted to all nations. It recognizes both the franc and the dollar as the basis of curcency. > SAINT PATRICK'S DAY .- Next Tuesday, March 17, is the anniversary of the Patron Saint of Ireland, of Kegs Nails, whom a word or two may not be out of place here. The mystery usually attaching to saints, has not left the name and fame of St. Patrick unclouded by doubt. He was born towards the close of the 4th century, and as variously alleged, was a native of Scotland, Wales and Brittany. One story has it, that he was originally stolen from his home by fillibusters, and earried to Ireland, where he was employed literally in the pastor-al office, being engaged in the care of sheep. After playing the part of a "gentle shepherd" for six years, the young saint returned home, where he was moved by contemplation of the spiritual wants of the Irish, to return and endeavor to convert Ireland to Cases Pimento, Christianity. He established churches and schools, ordained priests, and by virtue of his high mission, created bishops. The chief miracle performed by St. Patrick was the expulsion of all manner of reptiles, McMurray's Oysters, snakes, &c., from the happy island in which he offihaps will deny to the tender memories of the day, Powdered and Granulated Sugars
